FARMS IN DEMAND LOAN MAN REPORTS

Prices So Low That Farmer
Can Make Interest, Pay
Taxes and Profit

WEST PALM BEACH, Aug. 27.—"Agricultural conditions throughout the third Federal Land Bank district, embracing Florida, the two Carolinas and Georgia, with the exception of the conditions as a result of the Mediterranean fruit fly in this state, are such as to lend encouragement to farmers generally," said R. J. Taylor, secretary of the Federal Land Bank of Columbia, when talking to representatives of National Farm Loan Associations of this part of the state at their annual meeting here today.

"These conditions are being reflected in the more prompt remittance of installments on loans when due. Here in Florida I find everyone has faith in the officials of the state and federal government who are laboring so conscientiously to circumscribe and eventually end the activities of the fly in this state. Other states are casting anxious eyes in this direction. The action of the new Federal Farm Board at Washington in making money available to the citrus growers' organizations can be said to purchase the necessary warehousing and machinery for treatment of the fruit before it is shipped is indicative of the desire to help eradicate the fly. The fly must not only be circumscribed and curtailed, it must be eradicated. Florida farmers and others of this state must not get the idea that they will live with this insect. It is too dangerous and expensive. They should remember the old saying about bedbugs: 'It isn't a disgrace to have them, but it is to keep them.'"

Mr. Taylor announced that the Federal Land Bank of Columbia recently paid Uncle Sam, that is, the United States treasury, the last bit of money which it advanced twelve years ago to purchase the stock in the bank so it could begin to make loans immediately. "Florida farmers should not confuse sources of credit," the Federal land banks lend only upon farm real estate and accept only first mortgages on conservatively appraised properties; the capacity of the farm to produce under the average farmer, over a period of years being a principle consideration in establishing the appraisal value for lending purposes. Our loans have to be made upon what farmers consider a low valuation, for the loans are made for such long periods, 10 to 25 years, and conditions may change materially during what is actually more than an active lifetime of the average farmer."

"I am convinced that farm prices in Georgia and the Carolinas have touched bottom. I should say, have been dragging at bottom for the last few years and that they have begun to advance. We are actually asking and getting higher prices for the most desirable farms than we could have obtained a year ago. It only requires a relatively small number of sales to start prices advancing this again. I do not mean by this that there is going to be a land boom in these states, but I do feel, and feel strongly, that the prices of farms are now so low that an average farmer has a good chance to make the interest on the purchasing price, pay taxes, keep up the premises, and save money. That is the kind of advantage he has been looking for. It is here now. Further, when Florida has rid itself of the fly, agricultural conditions are going to show a marked improvement here."

DEPUTY FISH AND GAME COMMISSIONER BASS' TERRITORY IS REDUCED

Meil Bass of Sebring, deputy game and fish commissioner, has had his territory reduced by the appointment of M. C. Pitts of Okeechobee, who will cover Okeechobee county and part of Glades county. This leaves Mr. Bass with Highlands county and part of Glades which in itself is plenty of territory for one man to cover. Mr. Bass says there are plenty of birds in the woods, in fact he says he has not seen so many for a number of years. He added and within a short time turkeys left the still turkeys left the town.

RAINS AND LAKE LEVELS

The Okeechobee News These not fully familiar with weather conditions do not know that there is always two and sometimes three periods of rainy seasons from an equal running area vitally affecting lake levels and the safety of life and property. The Lake Okeechobee, original watershed of the Kissimmee did not extend much more than 80 miles south of the lake, but through a series of canals connecting several lakes with the river, the water extends to approximately 125 miles north. Into that area has been constructed numerous sub-drainage districts that provide for pouring more water rapidly than ever into the river, thus raising the lake, that under natural conditions never reached Lake Okeechobee, but evaporated.

There is a rainy season that begins at the river's artificial headwaters from 15 to 60 days before it reaches the lower sections of the Kissimmee valley and the lake. It is possible for the Kissimmee to rise at its mouth considerably and the area adjacent to Lake Okeechobee be suffering for the need of rain. That occurred to some extent late last July and early August. The rainy season began about 100 miles north of the lake, and the flood followed the rains down the Kissimmee valley until it reached the northern shores of Lake Okeechobee causing the lake to rise some three feet from late July until the latter part of August.

Soon after the rains ceased to fall so heavily in the Kissimmee valley the real rainy season began on the lower east coast. The lake had already begun a steady rise from the water of the rain belt north of the lake, and when the great rainfall began on the lower east it was so heavy that the east ends of the canals dug out of the lake could not carry off the water. The result was that water backed up in all the high levels of the lake, coupled with the rains at or near the discharge ends. The result was that water backed up in all the canals, except the St. Lucie and flowed back into the lake, causing the water to flow into the lake from points that ordinarily would have flowed into the ocean. This brought about a dangerous condition of September, 1928, and added no doubt to the loss of life and property on the lake.

MARSHALL TELLS OF TARIFF EFFORT

Fort Lauderdale Man Gave Helpful Suggestions To
U. S. Legislators

William H. Marshall of Fort Lauderdale, who addressed a farmers meeting at Belle Glade Thursday night last week, was a caller in Canal Point Friday, Thursday night of the week, to see a larger part of the upper Everglades. He intended to attend the farmers meeting at Peahoke Friday night but at attack of illness to which he is subject required that he return home at once.

Mr. Marshall returned to Fort Lauderdale recently from Washington, D. C., where he spent several weeks in aid to the campaign for a protective tariff on vegetables. In March he made a statement before the House committee on agriculture that attracted widespread and favorable attention and brought the suggestion that he be appointed on the Federal Farm Board.

His experience as a grower and shipper of Florida fruits and vegetables enabled him to make suggestions respecting pre-cooling plants and clearing houses, and his suggestions were commended and were commended by members of the House agricultural committee.

Record Makes Price

Appear As $6 Acre

The Stuart Daily News said in its Monday issue:

"The price of the 17,460 acres in Martin county bought by B. G. Dahlberg of the Southern Sugar Company, was $100,000, according to an extract from the minutes of the Lake Shore Land Company held in the county clerk's office. "These minutes set forth that the price was payable $10,000 on signing of the contract, and $40,000 on acceptance of the deed in June and $50,000 on a mortgage payable $25,000 on each month and $25,000 in 12 months at 6 per cent. "This makes the price approximately $6 an acre."

FLANDERS, FIRE WARDEN

ON WEST SIDE OF LAKE

MOORE HAVEN, Aug. 28.—Fred A. Flanders of Moore Haven has been appointed fire warden for district No. 2, under authority of the Everglades drainage board, to whom the duty of fire prevention in the Everglades was given by act of the recent legislature. This work has formerly been under control of an Everglades fire board, and the consolidation was effected as being more economical in operation, and in expediting Everglades development. Mr. Flanders, who received his appointment August 12th, is warden for the territory extending from Taylor creek at Okeechobee, embracing all the mud lands around Moore Haven and to Miami locks at the south of the lake, and extending west to Collier county.

SEMINOLES GO TO

A SCHOOL AT DANIA

DANIA, Aug. 28.—Captain A. L. Spencer, agent for Seminole Indian affairs in Florida, who makes his headquarters on the Indian reservation a few miles west of Dania, announced that the school for the Indians would open for the fall and winter November 1.

Mr. Spencer said that the teacher for this year has not been appointed. Applicants are chosen from the civil service list. Mrs. J. Marshall, daughter of Mr. Spencer, taught the classes last year and a part of the year before. Last year the enrollment was 14, which included men and women as well as children.

The children attended classes in the forenoon and one hour in the afternoon, while the men attend night classes.

Mr. Marshall said she thought it probable that the enrollment would be more than 14 this winter. A number of Seminole families from Fort Myers and other Indian sections are expected to come to the local reservation for a part of the time.

IN THE LOWER GLADES

Growers in the Davis section in Broward county are planning on a more active general farming program during the coming winter than in the last several years.

Growers estimate that there will be nearly 25 acres devoted to strawberries.

With the exception of beans, peppers and tomatoes, most of the truck crops will be disposed of at local markets. "Duke growers last year sold the bulk of their strawberry crop in Miami but with such an increase in the acreage this winter local growers will find it necessary to dispose of the bulk of their produce in markets outside of the state.

Interest in the maintenance of citrus groves and the development of new groves in the Davis section continues very active and the citrus industry is expected to remain the most important activity, although rich returns are realized annually from truck gardens.

TO SELL FOR TAXES

Twenty-two tracts of land will be sold at Moore Haven September 2 for the amount of taxes, penalty and costs due to District 2 of the drainage district. The sale will be made by B. A. Bales, special master in chancery.

BUSY ON TAYLOR CREEK.

FIXING FOR FISHING

OKEECHOBEE, Aug. 28.—At several points along the lake front and on Taylor creek fishermen are repairing tackle and boats preparatory to the opening of the fishing season on September 1. Several fishermen are of the opinion that the coming season should be a good one, as the waters have not been high enough this year to permit the fish to wander out of the lake into tributary streams. The fish hatchery turned loose about 250,000 young shad into the lake this year in addition to about 500,000 other scale fish.

WILD-CAT COLLATERAL

Wild animals in captivity are private property, Attorney General Fred H. Davis has written to a man who made an inquiry of his office; and being property "they are subject to taxation on an ad valorem basis under whatever applicable levy may be made in the jurisdiction where the animals are kept. At the same time," Mr. Davis added, "I have never heard of wild animals in captivity having actually been made subject to taxation in this state." Speaking of which reminds an old Everglades.

Gus Snell, who lived in West Palm Beach at least 15 years ago and no doubt earlier than that, used to go into the Glades and catch alligators and other things like that. He accumulated quite a collection, a regular zoo, and the idea came to him of taking the collection on the road for exhibit for a fee, figuring on doing quite a business.

To buy himself a suit of clothes and a little cash in general in his tour of the provinces, Gus borrowed $150 from the Pioneer Bank, pledging his collection of alligators, wild cats, etc., as security. Fully equipped, Gus started the tour and did some business, moving on up into Georgia, but his zoo got homesick or something and died on him so Gus came on back home. His note coming due, demand was made for payment or delivery of the collateral. "Collateral" was a new word to Gus. "Collateral," he said to the banker, "is just yourself—some like I did."

Attorney General Davis may never have heard of wild animals in captivity being taxed, but here is an instance of them being used as security for a state bank loan. That may have been the inception, origin and precedent for the wild-cat loans Mr. Ernest Amos' banks made.

DEPENDENT, BUT HAPPY—NOW

"There are different ways of looking at things," as an Everglades would say in a case like this, but it is not true that a large part of the total of the sales of automobiles, radios, sets, electric refrigerators, cash registers and washing machines—a tremendous sum, is also a sum of indebtedness owed by the buyers, a sum additional to indebtedness to banks, landlords, wholesale houses, dentists, physicians, grocers and milkmen."

If the installment plan of selling has increased the number of buyers and the total of sales, it has also increased by some amount the indebtedness incurred by the buyers.

A few years ago the total of deposits in savings banks was reported as plentifully quoted frequently and emphasized as the thrift of the general public or of classes of the public; possibly the statistics are as available now as ever before, but little attention is given to them—there is not much interest in saving, the emphasis is on what is being sold, which is new to a state of mind. For millions of people in the United States the margin between income and outgo is narrow, and this is true not only of wage workers: It is true of professional men and small business men and salaried men, high salaries as well as low, that they may be spending more of the income, to keep up with the times and have a late model car as the neighbor and not be beaten in any form of display. What chance has a savings account against the pull of modern capitalism exerted on behalf of section sweepers, electric washing machines, silk stockings and summer vacations? In the language of the Everglades, "We're not saving; we're just asking."

May be it doesn't make any difference, in any sense, whether people are laying anything up for a rainy day; it may not make any difference to individuals or to the nation, now or in the future, for a rainy day may never come—and yet if it doesn't it will be an sad enough. Nevertheless, this is a subject interesting to speculate upon.

It would not be a complete analysis, or fair, to ignore the fact that as people are spending more, they are doing so because they are making more, and for their spend.

There are getting something, so the statistician would say, for a state of mind. But if we look at the spending is for and compare the value and utility of what is being bought.

We of the older generation recall that farm boys saved to buy a pig or a calf or a cow, which would be used for a state of mind, and have a progeny, and that apprentices saved to buy tools with which they could make the transition from journeyman to masters, but to progeny comes from a pleasure car, a radio set or a vacuum sweeper, and as for the state of mind, the production system in factories has made tools unnecessary for the wage worker.

Anticipating a comment, we grant that there is a saving which goes into the purchase of stocks and bonds, but the buyer of the securities is a minority stockholder; even if he buys the stock of the steel company or oil company that employs him, he has no voice in the management of the corporation, he does not control his investments; when he has need to realize upon his share of stock or bond, that is exactly the time others are selling theirs and the price at which he sells is less than the price he paid.

In that other time which we recall, savers were usually in the land, and whether the land was a town lot or a farm the owner could be made of it by the owner, who became a producer or continued as a producer—the national wealth was increased by the use of that in which investment of savings was made. Many of the corporations which take the largest and most regular dividends are not engaged in production—they are engaged in transportation, communication and the handling of luxuries. When hard times come these companies' dividends must stop or be reduced; the holders of the stocks have to savings as land the owner, for years ago, put his savings into land.

The mass of the people nowadays are far more concerned about being entertained than about being secure in business or employment, and it may be it will that it is so, but they have found more pleasure than any people ever found before, it is also true that more individuals have surrendered their independence than ever before in all the history of mankind.

NO ADVANTAGE IN LARGE-SCALE FARMING

Farms and farming are very much in public confidence at this time. The reasons therefor are obvious. Individuals and organizations of all kinds are interested in agriculture, which is the backbone of America. Only recently the United States chamber of Commerce received a report from its agricultural service department which has been studying farms, large and small. This document reports that the agriculture of the country is becoming more and more a business, and that the efficiency depends on agriculture as a whole. This agricultural service department of the United States chamber of Commerce has the report on, after completing its survey, that the assertion that sometimes is made, that agriculture of the future will be featured by large-scale farming, is without justification.

From observations made, it is safe to say that large-scale farming in the United States will not take the place of the small farms that have been so popular in this country up to the present time. "Taken as a group," says the report above referred to, "the large-scale farms apparently have been no more, nor any less, successful than the average of the family-size farms." In addition, as stated in the report, "there are fully as great variations in the large farms as there are in the small farms, and the report adds: "It appears, then, that mere incorporation, or organization of farming enterprises on a large scale, will not automatically solve the problem of the agricultural industry."

It is the conclusion of the agricultural service department of the United States chamber of Commerce says that "Fears as to the probable disastrous effects of an extensive development of large-scale farming upon the economic and rural population are at least premature, since this type of farming still is a relatively unimportant factor in the agricultural industry and the capacity of its future development is uncertain."

There are very many advantages that are being enjoyed by small farms that cannot be enjoyed in large-scale farming. Individuality, for one thing is preserved. Community life is more to be enjoyed where small farms are maintained than where large areas of land are tiled and under control of companies or corporations. The independence of a small landowner is something that always has been and will be greatly appreciated. The rural population has been secured through intelligent and progressive methods of farming. Destroying the small farm would destroy very much of the incentive for the doing of good work by the farmer whose independence has been taken away from him. "There are other features of small farm ownership that contribute very greatly to successful farming. And, now, with so much of help being given to farmers by government, states and counties, that through the use of latest-type machinery, not to mention appliances that reduce drudgery in farm houses, life of the farms is not only more agreeable than it was in years gone by, but, also, it is possible to bring larger financial income than formerly could be secured."

There are many things that count for the making of small-farm ownership more desirable than large-scale farming, and they are too well known to call for statement here.

The campaign has opened in New York for the election of a mayor. Our guess is that Jimmie Walker, the Tammany candidate, will be re-elected in execution of what we suspect was a deal under which Tammany turned down Alfred E. Smith and helped Herbert Hoover. Good politicians pay their dues.

There are flaws and fallacies aplenty in democracy—Glean Frank of the federal government if access is to result. He is not without hope that through participation of the federal government that much can be accomplished that will tend toward a further tax reduction in the Everglades instead of an increase in its burden. We shall enter upon the work with an open mind. Not one conviction held by us is subject to change without a very good reason. Our ideas or plans are better. With such conviction, we are in accord with the Randolph and Jadin recommendations for federal participation under the Jadin recommendation.

We thought it to make life and property safe. We hope that we can be helped to do so by the developer and seller actually engaged in the development of the territory. The federal government must be slowly in money all the undertakings. The Flood Control Board will probably find it necessary to await that assistance with patience, but not to await it would be foolish. There is still federal assistance we have not the least doubt

LETTERS FROM READERS

City of West Palm Beach,
Department of News and Advertising.

August 28, 1928.
Mr. Howard Sharp, Publisher,
The Everglades News,
Canal Point, Florida.

Dear Mr. Sharp: I am Mr. Gerry Swinehart, the director of the department, is away in Michigan for a month's vacation and during his absence I am holding the fort. I have put away the copy of The Everglades News you so thoughtfully sent him to give to him when he comes back. Being a very sincere admirer of your paper, he will be very much interested in it. I am sure. In the meantime, I, having the double interest of a Glades dweller and a member of the newspaper clan, want to take this opportunity to offer sincere congratulations to you on your paper and particularly the issue you sent us. It certainly is a splendid one, from make-up to content. It means a lot to the people of the Glades to have such a paper in the hands of one who is working actively at all times for their best interests, and the fact that you are successfully meeting this position from four other papers is, it seems to me, convincing evidence that they are aware to the value of your paper and than any people ever found before. It is true that more individuals have surrendered their independence than ever before in all the history of mankind.

With all good wishes to you for your continued success, I am,
Sincerely,
JANE FLOYD BUCK,
Assistant Director.

CANAL POINT

Elder O. K. Sheffield, pastor of the Primitive Baptist church of Okeechobee, will preach here at the new community church Sunday, Sept. 1st. Come hear him. Miss Constance Rabin was in town Tuesday for her usual welfare work. She leaves on Saturday for a much needed vacation. She will spend part of her vacation with her family in New York state.

Miss Mamie Lowe, daughter of D. O. Lowe, has returned from Sanford. Mrs. D. O. Lowe returned last week from Plant City from a visit to see her daughter, Mrs. Sammie Godwin.

While lifting a Kohler pump at Hay Shackford's place north of town, Olaf Boe's thumb was caught and the end was mashed off. He went to a West Palm Beach hospital and had the injury treated.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson and his brother J. C. Wilson have returned from a vacation stay in the west.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Hubbard returned Wednesday from a visit to relatives at Daytona Beach.

T. B. Gilbert, chemist at the Canal Point sugar mill, left in his car early yesterday morning for Naplesville, La., his old home, to spend a three-week vacation there. The report that he is going to be married is without foundation, if he would permit himself to be enticed into matrimony he would have been married already. More likely he is leaving town because Canal Point did not win the pennant in the Everglades league.

Mr. Holland, the new shoe repair man, says his business has opened up unexpectedly well. J. C. Cone has finished setting eight acres of avocados on the old Shields place north of town. The grove site is an ideal one. It is on the sand ridge and most of it has never been under water. Access can be had to the lake for irrigation, and moreover Mr. Cone has an excellent plan of sinking wells and getting sub-irrigation. The opening of the fishing season won't mean much to Canal Point as there is no packing house here, but the return of vacationists and the preparation for the opening of school tend to improve retail trade.

1929 SESSION LAWS CAN BE SEEN HERE

Bound Copy Is Received At
Office of The Everglades News

A bound copy of the general laws of Florida enacted at the 1929 session of the Legislature has been received by Howard Sharp of Canal Point, a representative from Palm Beach county at that session. There has also been received the bound copies of the journals of the House and Senate. The volumes can be consulted at the office of The Everglades News by all who are interested. It is necessary to make a rule that the books cannot be taken from the office, however, the borrower might delay their return to the inconvenience of some one else.

The Everglades News has placed an order for 2,000 bound copies of the 1929 session laws, and the order has been accepted by a publishing house conditionally. These copies are in new-published form and will be made by the publishing house the unbound copies will be available for free distribution the latter part of September.

COMMUNITY GOSSIP

A man came into Pahokee about ninety days ago and opened up a business. He is gone now, having closed out the business and loaded his household goods and some other belongings on a truck and ridden away. He has left away at just about the time he could have started doing business.

A lot of people have done this very same thing; they come in at the wrong time and they leave at the wrong time—they want to get advice from the residents, they think they know what is and what ought to be. When they leave we get along without them, but we would rather they stayed.

What happens is this: The tourist season ends on the east coast in March; it really ends then, but the east coast people kick themselves into thinking the tourist season is running into April; when they find in April that the tourist season is ended, and when business gets dull, they look about for a new location. It is just about that time, in April, that business is at its best in the upper Everglades, for shipments of beans and peppers are still being made and the tomato deal has gotten under way. Too often the man from the east coast isn't content with good business part of the time—he wants a boom all the time, which can't be; he moves out here when business has slackened on the east coast and our business is booming, and he no sooner gets located than our dull season comes on, his business falls off, and straightaway he "blows" again, blowing out.

In summer time is the time to move in and get shaped away for the fall and winter and spring business. We have more months of good business than any other part of South Florida but we do not have booming business the year round, and the man who isn't willing to stick the year round isn't entitled to consideration.

OKEECHOBEE CATTLE IS SHIPPED TO Ocala

Ocala, Aug. 24. (AP)—Nine carloads of Brahman cattle, originating in India, are being loaded in the Okeechobee section for shipment to Ocala, where they will be turned into velvet horn fields of the Lake Weir country. The shipment was purchased by Taylor & Martin, who will open stock yards here in the autumn for the purchase of cattle and hogs.

"SHARP'S APARTMENT" Erection of a two-story 18x21 addition to The Everglades News building was started Monday by James Maxwell, Pahokee contractor. The addition is on the rear. The first floor will be a garage and warehouse and the second floor will be fitted for living quarters.

THE NEWS FROM AROUND THE BIG LAKE

OKELANTA

SOUTH BAY

About two inches of rain fell in our vicinity during Sunday and Monday last.

The Anjima family spent last Saturday with their relatives living in West Palm Beach, motoring back in the evening.

Frank Tully left in his car yesterday for a visit with his mother in Lincoln, Neb. Since his departure the "Okelanta Special," no doubt by an irreverent juvenile member of our neighborhood north of the north, has suspended service.

A letter received by F. J. Cooper from Dave Hetherington, who is spending the summer at his former home in St. Catherine, Ont., states that it has been unusually dry and warm in that part of Canada. Dave in his epistle questions the wisdom of an early return to his home here, since the map of the "Upper Everglades and the Lake Okeechobee" Region printed in The News of the 16th inst. made no mention of such a town as Okelanta on its map.

New River canal. We can, however, assure our pioneer townsfolk that he will find the town as well as his own home in the same section, township and range notwithstanding editorial failure of memory.

The Allen family, Hutchinson and a number of others from South Bay and vicinity were seen on our street in their cars.

To get mail to the post office this time to go out the same day is at times difficult.

OKEECHOBEE

From The News.

W. T. Goodie of Indianapolis was a business visitor in Okeechobee Saturday.

Miss Marie Clements of West Palm Beach is visiting her mother, Mrs. C. J. Clements. She will attend school in West Palm Beach this term.

Enoch Mole left this week for a visit at his old home at Evansville, Ind. He expects to return in time to put in a winter crop.

Mrs. Hudson Burr of Tallahassee who has been visiting her son, Frank Burr and family, expects to return to her home next week.

From a visit to Tallahassee and Mrs. J. E. Lovvorn attended the school of instruction for O. E. S. at Sebring Thursday.

Word has been received here that L. L. Wingate has accepted the position of night manager in a large cafe in Dallas, Texas.

J. W. McDaniel, who is engaged on about four weeks ago for a large estate, returned last week from a visit to Tallahassee and suffered a relapse and had to be carried to the hospital again.

Mrs. H. H. DeYarman, who has been in Philadelphia, Pa., for medical treatment, is en route home. She had the misfortune to break her right arm in three places while away. Mrs. C. F. True accompanied her on the trip.

NOTE: HARBOR BONDS

PORT LAUDERDALE, Aug. 24.—All bond issues, totaling $250,000, submitted to voters of Port Lauderdale for further development work today carried by a vote of approximately 8 to 1, while a special tax levy for similar purpose was approved, 10 to 3.

NEW PRINCIPAL OF OKEECHOBEE SCHOOL.

The 4-H Club and the Ladies Aid held a demonstration on Thursday at the home of Mrs. H. C. Willis.

The problem for the day was that of making vases by covering bottles with bits of colored paper and then shelling over the whole. The number of very artistic results would be surprising to the uninitiated. Mrs. Barnes, formerly Mrs. Morgan, was present with her usual helpful suggestions. The next meeting will also take place at the Willis home.
